the author, tells the story of a lost soul who stumbles drunken through the city. In a park, Death finds him and shows him many things. The Jury appreciated the beautiful technique, but especially the story's sensitivity and the power to impress the viewer.

The Animation Jury Prize was won by "BAD TOYS II" - Daniel Brunet and Nicolas Douste, a 6 minutes French 2012 production. The film has already a nice route through festivals (including Clermont-Ferrand) and several prizes; the Kinofest distinction comes to certify once more the excellent direction and editing, the great humor, the originality.

Synopsis: bank robbers on the run, the city's top cops on their trail: a high speed chase and no time to toy around!

The Best Micromovie was voted online by the public, on Youtube/Kinofest. "CALOR HUMANO" gathered most like's from the 15 finalists films. It is a Spanish 3 minutes production, signed Marc Nadal. The film is a personal meditation.

The Fiction Jury: Catalin Saizescu, Claudia Mota, Toma Cuzin, Alexandra Paun si Diana Metiu.

The Animation Jury: Bogdan Lazar, Cristina Zaharia si Andrei Cotrut.

For the 2014 edition, we organized a contest for the official poster of the festival. We received some interesting and beautiful works. It wasn't esy to choose the winner! We decided that Aaron Thai's proposition is the most suitable for the festival. (<http://aaronthai.com/>)

Aaron Thai is a London based animator. He loves animations. Love to draw. Love to paint. Love to spray paint on walls. Love sculpting. Love sketchbooks. Love to carry one anywhere he goes. Love to sketch randomly anytime. Love books. Love magazines. Love digital. Love analog. And he loves to enter design competitions, for fun :)
